Keysar Trad, a spokesman for the mufti, has already pointed out that Australia has relations with Iran.

Hockey is rotund, while Gillard is gaunt and towering.

The war on terror may get us all killed, say our capable leaders, statesmen, and officials.

The answer appears to lie in inaccessible fine print of the sedition bill, or perhaps in the fine print of a future amendment to it, as yet unimplemented but likely retrospective when enacted.

The last thing the people of Longueville need is to become another Balmoral.

The programme was screened on Australia's SBS network, but for unknown reasons it is seen no more in the Antipodes, to the detriment of satire-starved inhabitants of that US tributary.

In a war with fanatics, no quarter can be given.

Remember, we've all seen people who the Honxqp have become, whether we recognised it or not, although of course you're never the one it takes yourself.

'It has been an extremely difficult situation,' Mr Downer said on Monday.

Israel's abundantly aggressive reaction to the slightest sign of military competence from its adversaries has itself been an obstacle to peace.

Australian Foreign Minister Alexander Downer has joined in the chorus of voices crowing over the death of al-Zarqawi from a safe distance. But Opposition Leader Kevin Rudd's star recruit said there is more to upper North Shore politics than deciphering difficult cafe menus. Israel's abundantly aggressive reaction to the slightest sign of military competence from its adversaries has itself been an obstacle to peace. We, the public, can only guess at this congruent extension, apparently known to cognoscenti among the Federal Police. Gillard, in short, resembles nothing so much as a tallish giraffe, while Joe Hockey is in appearance and intellectual substance more closely related to the stereotypical and iconic koala. 'The issues in Bennelong are complex and people will resent an outsider coming to Wollstonecraft to impose their Mosman ways. Several of al-Zarqawi's aides were killed in the sortie, including Sheik Abdul Rahman, the al Qaeda leader's spiritual advisor. Like many others in positions of power, Bush also warns against an optimistic prediction of imminent victory.
